SUMMARY

My professional experience is born about twenty years ago in the financial sector (credit risk management), where I'm still currently engaged. More and more in the last ten years I have dedicated myself to cultivating the discipline of digital culture and online journalism. The two fields are very distant from each other but, nowadays, I believe it is important to develop transversal skills. This also means to operate within the Knowledge Economy, approach which represents a possible way out of the crisis for mature socio-economic systems such as the Italian and European ones.
